Logistics – the art and science of getting things where they need to be, when they need to be there – is quickly becoming one of the most important industries of our increasingly interconnected world. Logistics combines the technical skills of drivers, pilots and warehouse fulfillment specialists with the engineering know-how of computer scientists and the insight of business analysts. It is a fast paced field where saving minutes of time can mean saving millions of dollars.

Dayton's position at the intersection of I-70/75, near America's median center of population, makes it one of the best possible locations for distribution centers and logistics businesses. The Dayton Region is already home to some big names in distribution, a trend which is only going to increase. Local and regional governments in the area are partnering with private enterprise to make Dayton the nation's premier location for logistics operations. That means – among other benefits – the opening of many new jobs within the region.

Career opportunities in distribution have grown tremendously over the past decade. Logistics is a field which offers good jobs for good pay, and the opportunity to make an impact in a growing industry.

Logistics Training Program

Ohio Means Jobs Montgomery County has teamed up with the Miami Valley Career Technology Center (MVCTC) to offer a four-week training program to prepare qualified individuals for logistics jobs with local companies.

The training program is open to candidates with no formal training or experience in warehouse and distribution. Candidates will learn about the logistics industry and the important role of the front line associates. They will also earn a Certified Logistics Associate (CLA) certificate – a certification nationally recognized and approved by logistics companies – and gain valuable hands on experience with material handling equipment commonly used in modern distribution centers. Candidates completing this training will be well-qualified to begin their careers in the logistics industry.

This four-week training program includes one week of Essential Skills training at Ohio Means Jobs | Montgomery County followed by three weeks of certificate training at MVCTC.

In addition to the certifications, candidates who complete this training program are given priority status and guaranteed interviews with companies that have immediate openings for jobs here in the Dayton area.

If you are interested in pursuing a career in warehousing and distribution, contact OhioMeansJobs | Montgomery County at 937-225-5052 or sign-up online at OhioMeansJobs.com/Montgomery.
